The Junior College RUCIBIL

-DEDICATION-

IN VIEW OF THE FORTHCOMING TRI-COUNTY COLLEGE, LET THERE BE NO DOUBT AS TO WHAT MADE THIS DREAM A REALITY. IT IS BECAUSE OF THE OUTSTANDING CONTRIBUTIONS OF THE ADMINISTRATION, THE FACULTY, THE STUDENT BODY, AND THE MANY OTHER PERSONS INVOLVED IN THE FUNCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF OUR JUNIOR COLLEGE, THAT FUTURE STUDENTS ENJOY THE NEW TRI-LAND COLLEGE. IT IS FOR THIS REASON THAT THE NINETEEN HUNDRED AND SIXTY CRUCIBLE YEARBOOK IS DEDICATED TO BAY CITY JUNIOR COLLEGE AND THOSE CONCERNED, PAST AND PRESENT, WITH ITS FUNCTIONS.

-INTRODUCTION-

YOU WILL SEE IN THE ENSUING PAGES, IDEAS AND TECHNIQUES NEVER BEFORE SEEN IN ONE YEARBOOK. I HOPE THAT YOU WILL AGREE WITH ME IN BELIEVING THAT THIS BOOK IS TRULY A CATALOGUE OF MEMORIES FROM THIS JUNIOR COLLEGE.

PLEASANT READING

type and fashions

Red and black plaid sewed down pleated skirt with matching popover vest is accented with white long sleeve pullover sweater. The outfit modeled by Judy is suitable for Fall time indoors or outdoors.

fall outdoor fashions

Togetherness within the double hooded cape of bright red. The ideal outdoor wear for football games is modeled by Don and Julie.

This section has been introduced into this yearbook primarily to feature the fashions of 1960: the fashions worn in classroom and off campus by the students of Bay City Junior College. The fashion shots were modeled by the following students from Junior College: Jim St. Laurent, Kay Simmons, Janet Grew, Sue Humes, Leonard Ballosh, Lois Quast, Bill Wiechman, Tom Krueger, Don Hover, Julie Bowker, Bette Kimball, Mike McCuen, Rosanne Morrison, Terry Auman, Bill Little, Carol Hessletine, Carol Pettigrew, Fred Brown, Judy Knaub, Judy Nord, Ray Deshazo, Judy Brunette, Chuck Requadt, Joyce Graft, Sue Johnson and Mary Ann Uhlman.

Bay City Junior College yearbook thanks the following Bay City stores for their co-operation in making possible these fashion features: Cambell's Casuals, Bains, and May's Clothing.

Sue models brown tweed bermuda and blazer set. Dark brown knee socks complete the attire.

Pullover and cardigan shag sweaters are just the thing for Fall time wear on outdoor occasions. Judy wearing the pull-over turtle-neck sweater with knitted cuffs gets a helping hand from Ray who wears the cardigan shag sweater with knitted cuffs and side pockets. To complete Judy's outfit she wears tapered corduroy slacks while Ray wears polished cotten khakis. Both have on white low cut tennis shoes, so called sneakers.

indoor fall fashions

A toast to the host in crewneck, cardigan crewneck, and boatneck sweaters. Don models a dark green crewneck sweater with bold white horizontal stripes. Judy models a dark grey cardigan crewneck sweater while Terry wears the boatneck style sweater of a mixture of white and light grey.

The bulky knit sweater with jeweled neckline and push up sleeves is modeled by Rosanne. The skirt is of nubby tweed and black tights complete the casual look.

loyce puts a light on the new look for casual wear. Her skirt of soft box pleats matches the sleeveless vest which is worn over a tailored white blouse with rollup sleeves.

Key notes for the key look of the carnel jumper worn by Julie, play the tune for the style of her apparel. The jumper is touched with gold buttons and buckel.

Light beige sweater with dark brown stripes, tops brown tone slacks worn by Terry.

The Early American style is worn by Carol, Her dress is of brown and white quilted cotten print with three quarter length sleeves and rickrack neckline.

The antique phonograph is a conversational piece for Chuck wearing navy blue blazer with print lining and medium grey slacks. Judy wearing dark plaid coordinate and french cuffed white blouse adds to the conversation in process.

A pur-r-r-r fect pair. White cable stitch sweater with sailor collar, trimmed with red and navy blue, pairs off with a navy blue wrap around skirt worn by Julie. The kitten wears his own coat of light grey fur.

The young tailored look in a suit is modeled by Carol. The suit is camel and the jacket is touched with black trim and high waisted pockets which frames a bold print blouse of white, gold and brown.

What she sees we'll never know, but we see Bette wearing a plaid two piece outfit of Fall colors with matching cumberbun. The outfit tops a white rollup sleeve blouse.

For that Biology field trip Sue wears a short sleeve wool plaid dress with boat neck and fringed hem.

The white wrought-iron leaf patterned settee captures the setting of the styles worn by Mike and Julie. Mike wearing the new look in blazers is of wool knit, minus the collar. Its contrast is light grey slacks along with the continental tie. Julie wears a dress of cotton print bodice and a high waisted skirt of corduroy. The matching jacket of corduroy has a jeweled neckline and wooden buttons.

winter ski fashions

Its a wool striped parka with zipup front and attachable hood worn by Jim. The parka is green and black and the ski pants are black.

Pure silk parka in delightful bright floral paisley print is modeled by Kay. The jacket is waterproof and reverses to a solid color.

Jan wears a light blue waterproof nylon ski jacket with attached hood. Her ski gloves are of water proof nylon also.

Len models waist length nylon parka with knit collar and cuffs.

Sue models a white, boat neck, cable stitch sweater along with light blue stretch pants. Her ski hat is of blue and white wool knit.

Bill models the after ski fashions. His shirt is royal blue paisley print and his sweater is white knit with shawl collar and gold buttons.

lois models a white turtle neck cable stitch sweater. Topping the sweater is the Bogner soft courduroy parka which can be reversed to a solid color of durable cotton. She holds leather ski gloves and ski goggles.

Its the Bogner look in the s-t-r-e-t-c-h ski pants with the sleek-slim line tailoring.

The suede after ski boot has that touch of glamor with the fur trim around the top. Lined with sheepskin and zips up the back. (Left)

From Norway comes the sealskin after ski boots. The unique styling is most appealing. The warm, waterproof sealskin is trimmed with red and black braid and lined with felt. (Bottom Left)

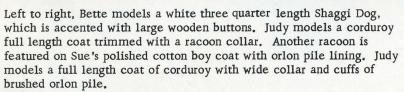

Here is a beautiful black cowhide boot fully lined with sheepskin. It zips snugly up the back and fits for comfort. (Bottom Right)

coats on parade

Trench coats hit the spot light for guys and gals. Anytime of year the Trench coat can be and is worn. Here we see Sue and Fred with almost identical styles. Most of the coats have plaid or print linings. Note Fred's Tyrolean (hat) of brown velour.

shoes in fashion

Spring, Summer, Fall, and Winter the tennis shoe can be seen worn on and off campus. White canvas with tie up front is the popular selection of college students.

This handsome pair has the practical look for the college man. The black leather, loafer style with high front flaps are the big scoop for college men.

The illusion heel of soft leather has the casual, but confidence look. A touch of glamour has been added to the plain pomp with a clip of three wooden buttons.

Black kid leather with pointed toes and slim heels have the look of elegance with attached folds of leather across the toes.

Shoes, book, and candle. The slim look in a leather tie flat with pointed toe and low cut near ankle. A pair for the college look.

In the year's collection of shoes the new look was present with the squash heel. Worn with stockings or tights are the squash heel flatty with soft leather tie up front and trimmed with gold.

THE WAR

SISTER

By Evelyn Shields

The ringing phone brought me down the stairs on a run, surprised that no one had made an attempt to answer it. I wondered if everyone had gone out.

"Hello?-----Just a minute, I'll see if she's home."

"Katherine, telephone."

"I'll be right there." She came out of the kitchen, munching on a cookie and not making the slightest effort to hurry to the waiting phone.

"Why didn't you answer the phone? You must have heard it. I had to stop washing the windows just because you were too lazy to walk out here."

She made a face at me and picked up the phone. "Hello?----Oh, hi." Having noticed that I was still standing near the phone, she turned her back and lowered her voice so I couldn't distinguish the words being said.

Watching her now, I realized how quickly she had sprung from a little girl into a teenager. Tall and slim, with dark eyes and skin like the blush on a peach, she had the promise of developing into a beautiful woman someday.

But she would have a long way to go before making that transition. Clad in the blue jeans and older brother's cast-off shirt she insisted on wearing, her appearance left something to be desired. It wasn't bad enough that she dressed so atrociously, but anyone who tended to be conservative, especially in tweed, was termed an 'English square' by her. And she made the appropriate gestures with her hands to express this somewhat unusual term.

I had to smile when I thought of the first time she had asked me what hair style I thought would look best on her; and whether "Pink for Paris" was her shade of lipstick. This was the first sign that she was growing up. She was to be found primping in front of a mirror more often than in reading her schoolbooks.

Then the phone calls started. At first only brief and to the point, but gradually extending to one hour sessions. Only girls called in the beginning, but now more and more often when I picked up the phone it was some young gravel voice in the slow process of changing. I guess this must have happened to another girl once, but I still couldn't help smiling at the shy, polite way they asked if they could speak to my sister, Katherine.

I glanced up quickly as I heard the phone being put back on the receiver. Feeling somewhat surprised, I realized that I had been sitting near the phone all this time. Katherine turned around and didn't even notice that I might have overheard the conversation. Her face was flushed with excitement and she could hardly contain her happiness.

"Mary, I've got a date for the Junior High Hop next Friday. Dick asked me!"

Her first date. And it was with the current man of her dreams. Not many girls had that kind of luck.

"Oh, I haven't a thing to wear. I can't go in one of those rags I own. And I know I can't get another new dress."

"Say, I've got an idea. Katherine, why don't you wear that red dress of mine?" "Do you mean it Mary?" "Sure, come upstairs and we'll see how it fits."

THE STORM

By Sylvia Grier

Out of the west they came, A herd of white stallions adventure bound, Briskly galloping on their winged hooves With nostrils flaring and heads thrown back, With banners of breath trailing behind. Look! look to the east! Are these not the dark wild bulls, Black and sweaty from aimless labor, With heads bent down ready to strike At the invaders advancing now? See! see! they are going to meet A challenge given, a challenge received, And all around them now shall suffer. There is no stopping this mad force, No turning back; it must run its course. They meet. Charging, mingling, warring now, They rise with a growing force and fury; Rearing upward, onward they come, Murkey dust caught up in a cloud. Onward! onward! increasingly vehement, Catching up all that is in their way, Continuing eastward to the great lake Where they pause to thirstily drink of its waters -- And find they are spent.

DREAMING
by harold m. mill
I love you my darling,
Though we're far apart,
I'll hug you and kiss you
In dreams, my sweetheart.
I miss you so much dear,
That what I may do,
I just cannot help it-My dreaming of you.

I dream of your eyes dear, So sparkling and bright, And there I see clearly The fairest lovelight. I dream of your lips dear, And oh how I miss The thrill of ours touching-That feeling of bliss.

I dream of your hair dear, So soft to the touch. It's dark as pure eb'ny But dearer by much. I just dream of you dear. That's all that I do. I'll never stop dreaming Until I have you.

Someday I am hoping
That you will be mine.
I'll hold you and love you
For all of the time.
And when I have you dear,
To love and adore,
I will be so happy,
I'll dream nevermore.

WRITING

ON RETURNING

By Sylvia Grier

They brought me from the black abyss; They held me back from my lover's kiss; And most of the time I would have it so; At others I wish they had let me go. How I wanted to go!

I'd wearied of pain and the sour wine
Of the crucifixion that had been mine.
(Did you think that Christ alone had died?
Didn't Mary die a bit as she cried?
Did she want to go?)

Not "How could this happen to one so pure?" But, "Why was I left?" Can I be sure There's a place back here for one like me? And I think of that place where I'd rather be. Oh! I want to go!

Put on your face your mask again
For there's work for you to do, my friend,
There are others who need your help, and so
You can not dwell on that place, nor go;
No matter how weary, you cannot go.

THE FLAME

by harold m. miller

Young man, you have ambitions great. You're striving to succeed. Now let me give you some advice ---A word, I pray you'll heed. There is a flame within your breast, That burns as hottest coal. It is the flame that drives you on To try to reach each goal. Do never of your goals lose sight, However far or high! For when you do, the flame burns low, And it may even die! You must feed the flame with your purs Of goals both large and small And very likely soon you'll see, That you have gained them all.

WELCOME CINDY

by evelyn shields

The whispered conversation suddenly ceased as the director emerged on stage. His steady voice seemed to ease the mounting tension of the small, huddled group seated in the theater. "I'm happy to see so many have turned out for the readings of this play. There are many parts to be filled and I'm sure that many of you here have an excellent chance of filling some of them."

Sitting somewhat removed from the others, I clasped my hands together even more tightly to keep their shaking from becoming evident to the others. The director's words gave me a ray of hope which up to now had been missing. I recalled having read in yesterday's paper that the next play was to be cast and anyone was welcome to read for a part. Up to now I had never had the courage to go because I feared being rejected. But now the desire to get a part overcame that fear.

The director's voice broke through my thoughts and I realized he was describing the only young female part in the play.

"Cindy's about nineteen, a redheaded spitfire who refuses to give in to the killers who have invaded her family's home."

My heart must have fallen to the pit of my stomach. A redhead spitfire! All my dreams of ever getting on that stage were shattered. How could a well-reserved, unimpetuous person like me completely change her personality?

"Would all those interested in the part come on stage please." Something must have made me move because I sensed myself walking up the steps leading on to the stage. Having sat down, I realized that I was the only one on stage to read for the part of Cindy.

The director asked someone to join me in reading through a scene.

"At this time Cindy realizes that Jake, who had been giving her the eye, has finally cornered her alone in the living room. She's afraid of him, but has no intention of giving in to his advances. She has plenty of spirit and fight in her." The director stopped speaking for a moment and then continued, "we'll start on page forty-two where Jake enters and starts toward Cindy."

I started reading my lines and one thought kept going through my mind - remember, she's got spirit, lots of it. Bring that out!

The scene lasted only a few minutes because suddenly it was all over. I discovered then, that I had, somewhere in that scene, lost my nervousness and was transformed into a spirited redhead!

Descending the steps, the director came toward me, a smile on his face and arms outstretched. "My dear, you are Cindy. You have given life to that character exactly as she was created by the author." He gave me a big hug and warmly said, "welcome, Cindy."

TEACHER DEAR

by sylvia grier

When I look back on day at school, I'll think of one who played the fool, One who thought to use the tool Of ridicule.
How droll.

Food for her ego then she bought, Pity the student that she caught In error, till they flunked fear fraught, She taught, She thought.

The Search

When men rise up from grime -or glory, When from the depth-or from the height, They look upon their own creator And say to Him, if they speak true, "I knew Thee not but wanted to." Born with faith, a childish naivete, Taught to doubt, and doubting lost The peace that passes understanding, Lost now in time and lost in meaning, Searching for familiar paths To lead him from a dark oblivion; To guide him to his own at last.

By Harold M. Miller

The bright clear days of Summer are gone, And Winter is near at hand.
The warm light breezes will soon give way To blasts that'll chill the land.
The trees their colorful cloaks have shed.
See how their branches are bare!
The fowl of the air have all flown away To the South, to be warmer there.

Winter'll mean many a change for all-For both the young and old.

We all will dress more warmly then,
So that we won't be cold.

Many a man his job will change,
The Mason and the Farmer,
For work that he can inside do,
Where he will be much warmer.

The women no longer'll be able to dry Their clothes out on the line.
They'll have to hang them all inside,
And dry 'em without sunshine.
The children too will change their games
From "baseball" and "Blindmice,"
To building snowmen funny and fat
And skating on the ice.

The weather will be bleak and cold;
The sky be dark and eerie.
The winds will howl; the snow will fall,
And landscapes seem so dreary.
But Winter will be bearable.
In fact, it might be fun;
Because we'll then look forward to
The Summer and the sun.

Philippians IV, 7: revised Standard Version, February 11, 1946. And the peace of God, which passes all understanding, will keep your hearts and minds . . . .

ATHLETICS

Bay City Junior College fields teams in cross country, swimming, basketball, tennis, golf, track and baseball. Our five man coaching staff has turned out excellent teams that have won a great many conference champion-ships. The Michigan Junior College Athletic Conference has twelve junior colleges as members.

The inter-collegiate athletic program gives our community an opportunity to see many fine four year colleges as well as junior colleges in action in Bay City. Besides this inter-collegiate competition a big program of intramural athletics is carried on for the average students who do not excell at but, enjoy playing sports. This program includes: bowling, golf, tennis, skiing, table tennis, archery, badminton, and softball. Some of these sports are going into the inter-collegiate area with a Winter and Spring State Junior College Bowling Tournament, a Winter Ski Meet, as well as a State Archery Meet.

Bay City has one of the finest gymnasiums in the State. It seats 3,500 people and is the site for the high school

State District and Regional basketball tournaments.

The philosophy of this department is to get students in better physical condition and teach them the rules of athletic games so that he may better enjoy sports as a spectator after he is out of school, and may enjoy participating in such carry-over sports as: golf, tennis, bowling, archery, hunting, swimming, and skiing.

A BAY CITY TIMES PHOTOGRA

HAPPY WANDERER - The ambition to become a travel lecturer has prompted a Junior College freshman to make a four and a half month walking and hitchhiking tour of Europe. Dick Steiner (above) toting knapsack and camera, is on his way to Rotterdam and will be spending the months of February, March, April, May, and part of June traveling the European continent. Dick is a photographer with this yearbook. Good luck to you, Dick, from all of the 1960 Crucible staff. (BAY CITY TIMES PHOTOGRAPH)
